

You can find it on the website:

Is there a good pioneer/crossing the plains story for Pioneer day?

- Look at “Good Knight Stories, Joseph Knight, Jr. and the Wheelwright John Harris” on the YouTube stories tab.
- YouTube story: Newel Knight in the Vanguard Company coming west”

Who was our first ancestor in America?

On the page, “Joseph and Polly’s ancestors” look at

- Video by Edi Ulloa, “Who We Are”
- First Knights in America by Diane Mangum
- First Pecks in America by Jordan Mangum

Do we have any ancestors who fought in the Revolutionary War?

Yes! Captain Joseph Peck and Benjamin Knight

On the page “Joseph and Polly’s ancestors”

- Look at the great article by Phil Dittmer, “Stories from the Knight and Peck Family Tree”

Do we have any horse thieves or criminals in our family tree?

No known horse thieves in the family, but a good story about a cousin, Mary Peck Bosworth who was a really good counterfeiter! Look on “YouTube stories.”

It seems like there is just not very much about the Knight women.

On the page “Joseph and Polly’s Posterity” look for the links to:

- Three Lydias, stories of three generations of brave women,
- Charlotte Knight, a WWII war correspondent with a harrowing story
- Inez Knight, one of the two first sister missionaries for the Church,
- Click on Elizabeth Knight and check out YouTube stories about baptisms for the dead and her participation in the Salt Lake City 14th Ward Quilt. Read about her experience in the Nauvoo War as a little girl in her biography
- And, on that page read the biographies of Polly, Phebe, Anna, Esther, Polly, the younger.

On the page “Knights in the D & C” find out about Knight Women who were Nauvoo members of Relief Society.

A road trip to see family historic sites would be fun, but where do I start?

On the page “Knight Family Sites,” James Knight has it all mapped out for you.

Are there any good “miracle” stories?

Look at the Good Knight Stories on the “YouTube stories” tab:

- “Lydia and the handkerchief, a miracle of healing”
- “The Eyes of His Enemies were Blinded” on how Joseph Smith was able to come and see the Saints in Colesville.
